Retirement Advisor University Set to Start Classes in September

Fred Barstein and Shlomo Benartzi just trained the trainers for their new educational program, and now the dates for their first classes are set. Barstein confirmed that the new Retirement Advisor University at UCLA's Anderson School of Business will hold its first class, for 60 people, from September 29 through October.

Earlier this month, Barstein and Benartzi gathered top retirement plan advisors and other industry insiders at UCLA to train them as teachers for the new program, which will combine in-person classes with webcasts and other online tools.

Presenters at the teacher training session included: Barstein himself, head of 401kExchange; John Carl, president of the Retirement Learning Center; Professor Benartzi from the Anderson School; and Fred Reish from Reish & Reicher.
